as we see it

When Sylvester L. (Pat) Weaver, the president of NBC and the man responsible for saving television from a fate worse than radio, announced his "Wide Wide World" show, a wag in our national programming office cracked, "Aha! Pat Weaver wides again!"

Mr. Weaver does, indeed, think wide —and long—and big. His concept of a program that would bring to viewers, in a 90-minute period, the top entertainment being offered anywhere in the United States, Canada and Mexico, presented engineering problems as great as any in TV history. Yet the first "Wide Wide World" came off with barely a hitch. In concept as well as in entertainment value it was, in the real unhackneyed sense of the word, great.

Weaver is virtually unknown to the millions of viewers who have benefited from his insistence that television should be more than a succession of situation comedies, short dramas and variety shows. He started Today, Home and Tonight. Then he came up with a grandiose word to describe big, new 90-minute musical and dramatic shows —"spectaculars." Some were, and some weren't, but the idea was good enough to get the other networks on the spectacular bandwagon, too.

We don't hold much with awards here on TV GUIDE, but if there is an award for the man who contributed most to television during the 1954-55 season, Weaver should win it in a walk. He has brought scope and excitement to television, and has been successful because he does not underestimate the capabilities of his staff nor the intelligence of viewers.

We hope he will keep on "widing" for a long time. TV needs him.

NEW YORK Bob Stahl reports:

Following critics' raves for its Wide Wide World last month, NBC proceeding with plans to present the show alternate Sunday afternoons in the fall. Two separate production units will each do one show a month -- it's that involved . . . And look for Wide Wide World to be the first to span the oceans -- if and when transoceanic TV ever becomes reality.

DOUGLAS EDWARDS will have to do his news program twice each evening next fall -- once at 6:45 P.M. New York time and again at 7:15. CBS can't line up enough stations to carry the show at just one of those time periods . . . WIN ELLIOT takes over as Beat the Clock emcee during August while BUD COLLYER vacations.

MILTON BERLE, hosting the press at a "farewell party" before leaving town (he'll do next season's shows in Hollywood), revealed that his first TV program in 1948 cost $12,000; his last this season, $182,000 . . . Under his new plan of doing a different type of show each week, BERLE has commissioned GORE VIDAL to write a satire to co-star TALLULAH BANKHEAD, and OCTAVUS ROY COHEN to write a comedy. BERLE also will do original musical comedies, some reviews, perhaps some shows from outside locations

JACKIE GLEASON returns to his original TV studio, Du Mont's Adelphi Theater in New York, to film The Honeymooners, with Du Mont's new "Electronicam" process. JACKIE started on Du Mont before striking it rich on CBS . . . Joe and Mabel to take over the Meet Millie time period in the fall, which means that MARIE WILSON'S Miss Pepperdine, originally scheduled, is out.

ABC set to televise the "Miss America Pageant" from Atlantic City again in September. BERT PARKS will emcee . . . ABC, a bulwark of hour-long drama last season with U.S. Steel Hour, Elgin Hour, and Pond's Theater, still has no hour drama definitely set for the fall. ABC is willing, but the sponsors are weak.

CBS reportedly financing production on Broadway next season of the musical version of "Pygmalion." Naturally, this will give CBS first crack at doing the show later as a TV "special" . . . DR. BENJAMIN SPOCK, famed baby authority, will have his own NBC show on Sunday afternoons in the fall. It's to be devoted not only to baby care but also to marriage counseling and other subjects.

Du Mont signed to televise 12 of the New York Giants' pro football games again next fall . . . Film TV will enjoy its biggest season next fall. Networks estimate that at least 50 percent of all their regular nighttime shows will be produced on film -- and this despite all the live "spectaculars" on the agenda.

Jack Webb's 'Blues'

He Hopes A Million-Dollar 'Pilot Film' Will Free Him Of 'Dragnet' Shackles

It's no great secret at this late date that Jack Webb wants out. He also wants in. And in order to ride his horse in both directions, he has placed a good deal of his time and money and all of his reputation on the line.

With an enthusiastic assist from Warner Brothers, which hardly stands to lose a dime on the deal, Webb is making the most expensive "pilot film" ever attempted for a projected TV film series. (Production cost: $1,-100,000.) Actually, it is a full-length feature picture, done up in all the trimmings of CinemaScope and full color, called "Pete Kelly's Blues." It will hit the theaters late this month.

What with the names of Webb, Janet Leigh, Edmond O'Brien and Peggy Lee on the marquee, Warners is bound to turn a profit on the picture, as is Webb himself. He owns a percentage of it. What Webb stands to lose, however, is his drawing power as a TV star.

The question he wants answered is very simple: will the viewer, after three years of knowing Webb only as Sgt. Friday in Dragnet, accept him in the entirely different characterization of Pete Kelly, a Kansas City cornet player of the Prohibition era?

If the movie-going public (which obviously includes a large majority of the viewing public) accepts Webb in the new role, he will be at least artistically free to go ahead with a TV film series based on the picture.

There are other stumbling blocks, however. He must resume production on Dragnet in October, with 55 more episodes to shoot under his present contract. For several months now he has been trying to convince his sponsor that enough of a good thing is too much and that Sgt. Friday should be eased out of the picture. He wants desperately to promote Friday to lieutenant and bring in a new actor to take over the sergeant's stripes. That would leave him with only the production-direction chores and could conceivably give him enough time at least to start planning the new series for 1956-57.

Webb has been criticized lately for sloughing off Dragnet, a charge he vehemently denies. "If we spent less time on the last batch," he says, "it was only because the crew has shaken down to the point of having one of the smoothest filming organizations in the business. They used to criticize me for being a perfectionist. In this kind of competitive business, you've got to be or you don't survive. But just ask any of the actors continued around here if I've been sloughing off on 'em. Dragnet is still as good as we can make it, and I think the ratings bear me out."

Aside from "Pete Kelly's Blues," Webb is committed to one more picture for Warners and has tentative plans for three features of his own. He is so fired up over Peggy Lee's performance in "Blues" that he has signed her to an exclusive deal under which she will make pictures only for his own Mark VII Productions. He and writer Dick Breen also are working on a TV format for her.

Breen, more than anyone else, has turned out to be Webb's anchor to windward. He wrote the old "Pat Novak For Hire" radio show that marked Webb's entry into San Francisco radio after World War II and developed and wrote the original 13 "Pete Kelly's Blues" radio scripts that aired on NBC during the summer of 1951. He also wrote the movie script.

Over the years, Webb has shucked off one associate after another in his drive to the top. He has been accused of ingratitude, but defends himself on the grounds of not wanting to be surrounded by people who can't keep up with him. "Look at their track records," he says of those he has dropped along the way. "They've done very little since to prove themselves."

An exception has been Jim Moser, long-time Dragnet writer who conceived and now produces and writes Medic, sometimes known in the trade as "Drugnet." Webb frankly admits he had a chance to co-produce the show with Moser, but didn't think it would go. He also wanted Moser to stay with Dragnet, but made no attempt to hold him.

"He's done all right," Webb grins.

Webb himself has slowed down somewhat, at least on the inside, if not on the surface. Three years ago he was a young man in a driving hurry, intent only on being a success. He worked at it 24 hours a day and made Dragnet a household word. The price was rather a stiff one: divorce, with his two children remaining with their mother, Julie London Webb. Now married to the former Dorothy Towne, he apparently has made provisions for working something less than 24 hours a day, although rumors have twice cropped up concerning an imminent separation.

Webb today knows his job, knows he will never lack for one, and knows the price that goes with success. The brash self-assurance which characterized him three years ago has matured into the kind of easy self-confidence which only success can bring.

"If anything," an associate has remarked, "his hat size has shrunk. He is one of the truly brilliant young talents in this business. Now that everybody knows it, he no longer has to fight to prove it."

No fooling: this photo is a composite, but sunspots may cause it to come true.

'Hey, Ump—Throw The Bull Out!'

Sunspots May Bounce TV Signals From Barcelona To The Bronx

If, on your television screen, suddenly a bullfight from Barcelona should appear in the midst of a ball game from the Bronx . . .

Or if the Eiffel Tower pops up in the middle of George Gobel's "So there you are . . ."

Blame it on the sunspots.

You can expect all sorts of weird interference in your TV reception—some of it actually snatches of European programs—in the months to come. For the sun is going into the climax of an 11-year cycle, when it starts acting up and breaking out in a rash.

Sunspots, ranging from 1000 to 100,000 miles in length, appear as vast, dark areas on the sun's face, and inevitably these spots cause magnetic storms on earth.

When sunspot activity is high, there are changes in the atmospheric layers surrounding the earth. Television and shortwave radio signals can be bounced or reflected far beyond their normal range. Hence, there's a good chance that programs from Europe will break into domestic telecasts.

One expert, John H. Nelson, the Radio Corporation of America's top wave analyst, predicts that "The high spots (of activity) will be in the days still a year or two off. Stations from foreign nations will be breaking through periodically. It will not be a constant affair, but spasmodic."

He adds that he already has detected some of these sunspots and that "We are climbing into the maximum cycle." He says the best chances for foreign reception will be between 9 A.M. and 1 P.M. on winter days.

Some TV viewers may look forward to foreign interruptions as an improvement of the local scene. There are those, however, in the production and commercial end of TV who fear the interference will be a real nuisance. They envision, say, a foreign program cutting in just when the hero is about to get shot. And you'll never know what happens.

Denise Lor Shows Why A TV Vocalist's Life Is Not A Simple One

For a girl-type TV singer, the ability to carry a tune is just a starter. Denise Lor, of CBS' Garry Moore Show, for instance, must furnish eye-appeal, take part in skits, dance, sell the sponsor's product, play musical instruments and laugh at the boss' jokes.

And that's not the limit of her versatility. After her seven-hour-plus workday, the blue-eyed brunette rushes home to play wife and mother to husband Jay Martin and sons Ronald, 7, and Dennis, 3.

...And Singing Too!

Weather Is No Laughing Matter

A Meteorologist Fears Too Much Trickery In TV's Forecasts

By Francis K. Davis, Jr.
Assoc. prof., physics and meteorology, Drexel Institute of Technology; staff meteorologist, WFIL-TV, Philadelphia.

The old saw, "Everybody talks about the weather but nobody does anything about it," has grown rusty. People do do things about the weather, like seeding clouds with silver iodide crystals to produce rain.

This kind of doing things about the weather is usually fine. But what's being done about the weather on television is something else again.

The popularity with sponsors of five-minute TV spots and the snug way in which weather forecasts occupy such periods has produced a rash of so-called "weathermen" and "weathergirls," who breeze through alleged weather information, "embellished" with philosophy, wisecracks, costume changes and gimmicks. And for this, they earn up to $40,000 a year.

Now, humor is fine, and a pretty girl is like a melody; but weather per se is no laughing matter. To many viewers it is vital. It may determine where they go, how they go, what they wear, even what they earn. That is why, for instance, the Resort Hotel Committee of the American Hotel Association recently charged that radio and TV weathermen guilty of "hysterical . . . performances in which weather severity is exaggerated, keep resort visitors home in droves," costing millions.

Last June, the American Meteorological Society appointed a committee, of which I have the honor to be chairman, to study television and radio weather forecasting. We found that most "weathermen" were primarily entertainers, whose only qualification was an ability to use a telephone and a pencil—the first, to call the nearest U.S. Weather Bureau office; the second, to jot down the results of the conversation.

That, in itself, is not especially deplorable. Nor is any great harm done when TV forecasters clown or model clothes before or after the official forecast, provided there is no direct connection between the two.

What is deplorable is that often the U.S. Weather Bureau is not even credited. Worse, the official forecasts often are edited and "tricked up" to such a degree that a completely erroneous impression is created.

If TV weathermen are going to pose as experts, we feel they should be experts. We think the weather should be discussed with dignity. Dignity, not dullness. We think many TV "weathermen" make a caricature of what is essentially a serious and scientific occupation, help foster the notion that forecasters merely grab forecasts out of a fish bowl.

We are advocating use on the air of a "seal of approval," which indicates that a station's weatherman is qualified, and we are urging courses of instruction to increase the number of qualified weathermen. And girls.

For don't misunderstand. We heartily approve TV's use of pretty girls, like the ones shown. But unless they're qualified, we'd be happier if—on TV, as on a date—they'd talk about anything except the weather.

Meteorologist Davis is a nice fellow and all that, but it may be that he carries the scientific approach a bit too far. On the other side of the argument, we present a few of the ways TV stations have managed to brighten the weather picture—whatever the outlook. The lady forecasters' curves aren't exactly isobars, but how can even Mr. Davis ignore them? TV GUIDE remains neutral in the stormy controversy between Beauty and the Barometer.

Eugenie Burke, 'Miss Press Photographer,' has appeared on WARM-TV, Scranton, Pa.

Kay Field; former name-band singer, is weathergirl on WISH-TV, Indianapolis.

Maxine Barrat, WITV, Hollywood, Fla., weathergirl, forecasts in bathing suit.

Judy Marks studied basic meteorology before going on WOKY-TV, Milwaukee.

Cindy Dahl, USO singer-dancer-comedienne, reigned on WTTG, Washington.

DO IT YOURSELF

Gardening Without A Garden

By Ruth and Phil Alampi

The Alampis telecast over WRCA-TV, New York.

You can add gaiety to your home by using window or porch boxes filled with bright, long-blooming flowers.

Start with rich topsoil which has good humus—two parts loam soil and one part humus. To a bushel of this add a pint of bonemeal, half a pint of a garden fertilizer and a pint of lime. Since the plants are set close together, there is terrific root competition for the available food. Once the plants are established, each watering should contain a small amount of liquid fertilizer. It's better to add a diluted solution often than a heavy application every three or four weeks.

For sunny areas, use red geraniums as the center planting, underplanted or flanked by white petunias, or white geraniums banked by red or pink petunias. The gray foliage of dusty miller, surrounded by blue ageratum or vari-colored coleus makes a colorful display. So does China aster, underplanted by French marigolds or alyssum. Trailing plants to hang over the edge of the box are English ivy, Kenilworth ivy, tradescantia, variegated vinca or ivy-leaved geranium.

For shade, use caladiums or tuberous begonias, holly fern or Boston fern, fuchsia, Impatiens-balsam, Anthericum and rex begonia.

Do you want a portable, quick and long-blooming window or porch box garden? Take trowel in hand and start soon. You'll never regret it.

For the Alampis: red geraniums, white petunias.

Brokenshire

Guy Lombardo

Gotham Dateline

Norman Brokenshire bows out of his 1 P.M. Ch. 4 program after the Aug. 19 telecast. The time will be filled by a variety program, exact details of which are not set yet. The TV Workshop series, which is worked into the Brokenshire program periodically, will shift to the Saturday, 7 P.M. slot, vacated for the summer by Rheingold Theatre.

TV GUIDE has moved into the world of song via a cute mention in "Bring on the Bride to Be," sung by Ralph Herbert in Guy Lombardo's "Arabian Nights," at the Jones Beach Marine Theater. Herbert, playing the role of the Grand Vizier, sings:

"Where will I ever find a bride?
I even tried the classified,
Tried looking in the TV GUIDE—
Arabian Edition."*

New Haven's Ch. 8 ends its NBC-TV affiliation, Oct. 1.

Ch. 5 has acquired TV rights to all productions at the Phoenix Theater during the 1955-56 season, after they complete their runs at the off-Broadway house.

Ch. 11 will introduce a new quizzer, Aug. 6, in the Saturday 10 P.M. slot. Named Ringabuk, the program calls for numerical answers to questions put to studio contestants. The numbers will be posted on a board. Viewers at home will have a chance to make some money if they have a dollar bill whose serial number matches the string of numbers posted.

Ch. 4 is in competition with NBC-TV's other owned and operated stations for prizes the network is offering for efforts in behalf of public service leadership.

Hits, Large and Small

In TV GUIDE for June 25, Sheilah Graham reported that Eddie Fisher's manager said, "You haven't had a hit record since you got engaged." Well, I don't know what gave him this idea, but it isn't so. He has had some big ones and some small ones, but they were all hits. Right now the nation's top record is "Heart," sung by Eddie Fisher.—Julie-Anne Orlando, East Haven, Conn.

MODEL CITIZENS OF CHANNEL 4

Steve Allen . . . Most casual bird in North America. Came out of the west one day making ad libbing sounds. Plays piano, writes and sings songs. He and his spectacles are often seen on the NBC Spectaculars. Widely disliked for keeping people awake too late with a steady stream of laughs, up-beat music and off-beat guests.

Channel Chatter

Ever since Christopher Fry kept Thomas Mendip from murdering himself in "The Lady's Not for Burning," he's had an odd effect on New Yorkers. He's sent them into churches to see "A Sleep of Prisoners" and this winter he's changing the acting habits of four TV performers who will suddenly find themselves declaiming lyrical lines on the legitimate stage rather than giving out with the monosyllabic utterances of "realistic" TV dramas. The four actors are Donald Buka, Lynne Charnay, Peggy McKay and Dick Moore, and they'll all appear in the New York production of Fry's "Tiger at the Gates," adapted from Giraudoux's "The Trojan War Shall Not Take Place."

Merry

is the Word

There are many ways to say it – but, to youngsters, "merry" perfectly describes the kind of wholesome entertainment delivered every day by Ray Heatherton and the gang from "Mail-land".
Ray captures the wonder-filled, "party" spirit that's an exclusive quality in children – which is why, with the kiddies for whom "The Merry Mailman" is specially patterned – "merry" is the word!

Hume Cronyn and Jessica Tandy in "THE FOURPOSTER" by Jan de Hartog

1890: They're man and wife.

1891: A baby is on the way.

COLOR There are just two characters in "The Fourposter"—a husband and wife. The action of the play spans 35 years of their married life. The scenes—dramatic crises, comic incidents—all take place near their antique fourposter bed.

Their children are born, grow up and face their own pleasures and tragedies. As decade follows decade, fashions change both in dress and in attitude. Even the relationship between husband and wife undergoes profound changes.

Playing the roles are a real-life married couple, Hume Cronyn and Jessica Tandy, who created the roles on Broadway.

CREDITS Producer and Stager: Hume Cronyn. Director: Clark Jones. NBC Producer: Fred Coe. Designer: Otis Riggs.

1908: Worry over their son.

1911: Marriage in danger!

5 BOXING—St. Nick's Arena

Gene Poirer, Niagara Falls, N. Y., vs. Danny Jo Perez, New York City, welterweights, 10 rounds. Chris Schenkel.

TV GUIDE RATINGS

	Rating	Bouts	W	L	D	KO's
Poirer	Unrtd	16	12	2	2	5
Perez	Unrtd	21	16	4	1	4

Poirer's last bout with Oscar Pita, the Argentine champion, was a thriller. Poirer sent Pita to the canvas three times before falling victim to a kayo. Perez, a free-swinging youngster, held Orlando Zulueta to a draw and put up good battles against Frankie Ryff and Kenny Lane. This should be an action-filled scrap.

She Has Plenty Of Reason To Sing

'Grandmother' Marlowe, husband Larry Puck amuse his grandson, Norman.

Marion Marlowe Begins Her New Career With Ready-Made Family

All good things come to those who wait—especially to those who wait to be fired by Arthur Godfrey. Marion Marlowe, among the more continued recent to be handed one of Godfrey's pink-slip tickets to fame and fortune, has been swamped not only with cartons upon cartons of keep-your-chin-up-old-girl mail, but also with theater, night club and movie offers, plus a bid for her own TV show.

Marion insists she isn't bitter about getting the sharp edge of Arthur's ax and declines to discuss what it was like to work for Godfrey. She doesn't parrot, like other ex-Godfreyites: "All that I am or ever hope to be, I owe to Mr. G." But she deflects all questions with a smiling "I refuse to answer on the grounds that it might incriminate me." Marion's case, of course, is rather involved. Her new husband, Larry Puck, still works for Godfrey as producer of Talent Scouts.

In person, Marion is warmer and more exuberant than she sometimes appeared on the Godfrey programs. Relaxed and nicely tanned after her Bermuda honeymoon, she seemed as happy as any new bride. Parading barefoot around her new apartment on Manhattan's Upper East Side, she proudly pointed out where her new furniture was to be placed. Then, sipping a soft drink and munching some pretzels, she sat on the floor to chat. She boasted that even though there's only a few years' difference between herself and her new stepson, Emmett, "We get along just great." She also has acquired a grandchild, Norman, whom she loves to introduce as "my grandson."

Although she insists she's not bitter about the way Godfrey fired her, The Mariners and Haleloke, Marion says she was "surprised, bewildered and shocked." On the show that Friday morning, she says, "Everything was just peachy-dandy. And then to be invited upstairs and be fired so suddenly—that hurt. All I could think of was that I support my family—Mother and my grandparents—and that, come next Monday, I wouldn't have a job."

But Marion didn't have to worry long. Ed Sullivan immediately signed her for a series of guest shots on Toast of the Town. The William Morris talent agency took over her booking, lining up dates in the biggest night clubs in Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and Chicago—plus a lucrative six-to-eight weeks' booking at a brand-new hotel in Las Vegas. She has one movie deal cooking in Hollywood, another in England, and is now negotiating for that TV show of her own.

Marion claims she still has no idea why Godfrey fired her. But, she says, Behind her: Marion dancing with Frank Parker, with whom she was linked by press agents in the Godfrey show days.

"He was my boss and he had every right to hire and fire whom he saw fit. I respected him as my employer and tried to do a good job. I worked for him and he paid me—that's all I'd expect from any boss."

If Godfrey ever showed any favoritism to members of his cast, Marion was not one of the lucky ones. She invoked her rights to refuse discussion on this point. Asked whether Arthur ever blew his top during a rehearsal, Marion said, "They were average rehearsals. Sometimes things went right and sometimes things went wrong.

"Now that it's all over, I feel happy and free. It's a whole new life, like a page being turned in a book. You look back at that last page with gratification, then forward to the next."

She refers to Larry as "Papa" and "My No. 1 Boss-man." Their romance started as a simple friendship, she said, and grew as a result of their mutual need for companionship, since her first marriage had ended in divorce and Larry's wife had died.

"About a year ago Larry proposed. But I told him, 'I'm not ready to get married yet.' He just laughed and said, 'Okay. But the next time you'll have to ask me—and I'll make you pay the $2 for the license.' He was so right. A couple of days before his birthday last May 3, I wrote him, 'Okay, you win.' And I enclosed two $1 bills." Had Godfrey tried to break up the romance? "Not in so many words. But you can bet that we heard about it on the grapevine."

Right now Marion is excited about her night club work. "It's taught me more than I learned in the last 10 years." But she yearns to become a Hollywood star because "I was there two years and couldn't get anybody even to listen to me."

Marion, then 15, worked in a hamburger stand and as a car-hop at a drive-in restaurant, finally landed a job in the chorus at a night club, where Cecil Landeau, a British producer, spotted her. He signed her for a London review, "Sauce Tartare."

Marion worked in London for 18 months. But she had an aversion to British food and British water. And if that weren't enough, she slipped on stage one night during an African jungle number and fractured her leg. "So I took the next boat home to Mama, complete with food poisoning, water poisoning and a broken leg.

"What I'd like to do most now is to succeed in Hollywood. I'd also like to do a Broadway show. I want to do as much as I possibly can. I think I'm a very lucky girl that all this happened to me." What "all this" means, she doesn't say.

Next Week: The Mariners

Ed, Sylvia Sullivan at Connecticut home.

'Nice Bossy': Ed gets acquainted;

Who Said 'Gentleman Farmer?'

City Slicker Ed Sullivan Wants To Make His 200 Acres Pay Off

Ed Sullivan, the Toast of the Town man, swaps town for country every chance he gets these days—to hie himself out to his new home (once occupied by Arlene Francis) and his nearly 200 acres of Connecticut farmland, 22 miles northeast of Bridgeport. A self-designated (and New York-born) "city slicker," Ed now happily is learning how much fodder will take a Guernsey or a Holstein through the winter, how many pounds of milk each gives a day, and what constitutes a cord of wood. However, the necessary work around the place, he stresses, is being done by real farmers.

he increased grazing area for bull, 30 cows.

Just two hours from Broadway.

'Real boss' of farm is Fred Uttal.

Ben Feit, Manufacturers Trust Co. executive, and guards bring $8000-and-better questions from the bank's vault.

The $64,000 Question

PROGRAM OF THE WEEK

In The $64,000 Question, CBS has what may be the most talked-about show on all television before the year —or the money--runs out.

This quiz starts at $64, a figure which in the old radio days was considered the epitome of loot. It wastes no time on fancy sets and windy introductions. Emcee Hal March chats briefly with each contestant, then plunges into the serious business at hand—questions based on a category of the contestant's choice.

The first four questions, correctly answered, bring the contestant up to $512, which he is guaranteed if he misses one of the next three. The next three get him up to the $4000 question, which, answered correctly, guarantees him a Cadillac convertible even if he misses later. Next comes the $8000 stickler, after which he has a week to decide whether to try for $16,000 or hang onto his $8000. He has additional weeks of decision before the $32,000 and $64,000 questions.

The first four questions are "dealt" by an IBM machine; the remainder are presented to March by a bank executive (flanked by two bank guards). Hal explains solemnly that the questions, compiled by a scholarly Board of Editors, have been locked in a vault and even he doesn't know what they are. Beginning with the $8000 question, the contestant has to stand in what looks like a sound-proof (and hint-proof) glass booth.

The Ames Brothers

The Ames Brothers, four young men who have had their share of hit recordings during the past several years, are now appearing on TV in a series of 15-minute telefilms, launched on a record number of stations. If you like the Ames Brothers' type of music, you'll like The Ames Brothers. If you don't, better not tune in.

The series attempts to break away from TV's standard quarter-hour musical format by injecting a story line into each program, but these, unhappily, do not always come off. It may be that you can't have the boys sing three or four numbers and still tell a story. Or perhaps the Ames Brothers just can't act well enough to sustain even a thread of a story.

For example, a girl sweet-talks one of the boys into hiring her as accompanist-arranger. Turns out she has a fiance, who actually does the work.

It's cloying stuff, sure. But backed by the Ames' singing, it's acceptable, And they do sing well.—R.S.

FINE TUNING

By Ollie Crawford

Kangaroo runs wild after television show. It was jumping up and down so fast, everybody thought it was a producer.

This was the first time a kangaroo was listed as out of bounds.

The kangaroo appeared on the Baltimore program, This Is Your Zoo, and was last seen asking directions to Australia. When it went bouncing down the main street, 47 drivers thought it was one of the new foreign cars. One guy said it was the first one he ever saw with the rumble seat in front.

Another guy said that if this was the new model pedestrian, the Safety Council would never make its quota.

It was the first time Baltimore ever had so much trouble with zoo-suiters. They said they knew Hopalong was a big TV star, but this was ridiculous. They hadn't seen anything like this since the table-hoppers at the Stork Club. They finally sent out a four-state alarm for a fugitive from Masquerade Party.

He's now been offered the lead in The Pinky Leap Show and a role as a bounder on Robert Montgomery Presents.

She's Sick

Fact and fancy: Jean Hagen as a real housewife, a role she does so well on TV. But she prefers siren's parts, as in 'The Big Knife,' above.

Why Jean Hagen Hungers For Bad-Girl Role

"So many people think I'm the wife of Danny Thomas," Jean Hagen commented not long ago, "that when my real husband takes me to a night club, I feel there is something delightfully illicit about the experience."

This is an experience peculiar to television—the medium in which entertainers play husband or wife to someone else's husband or wife for such long periods of time they seldom get to be known by their real names—a situation which leaves people like Jean Hagen feeling not only "delightfully illicit" but a little frustrated.

As Margaret Williams, Jean plays the sweet and understanding wife of Danny Thomas (he plays Danny Williams) in Make Room for Daddy. It is a role most people consider cut to her precise measure, which is fine for most people. But Miss Hagen, an old pro, has other ideas.

"I guess I am what you would have to call a chronic complainer," she admitted. "I think most actresses are. You trudge up and down Broadway, glad to get a small part or two and pray for a good role in a hit. So you get the hit. And after three months of the same role you're fed up to here with it."

Of Goodies

Miss Hagen, who can speak as bluntly offstage as she can sweetly on the air, has been doing Make Room for Daddy for the past two seasons and is committed to a third.

"It's the same old complaint," she shrugs. "The same role for two solid years, and under the most confining circumstances. It's no exaggeration that I actually see more of Danny and Rusty and Sherry than I do of my own husband and children."

If Jean is better known to the viewing public as the all-knowing Margaret Williams, she is better known to the trade as an able dramatic actress, a girl who would rather play a siren's role than an ingenue in love with Prince Charming.

She rejoices in parts like that in "Singin' in the Rain," when she played a fading movie star who couldn't buck the new era of the talking picture. And that in "Asphalt Jungle" when she was the kind of female that gives the censorship people sleepless nights.

Because TV viewers apparently take a deep and abiding interest in the welfare of their favorites, Jean has received a good deal of disquieting mail concerning her upcoming appearance in a picture called "The Big Knife." It finally reached the point where she had to sit down and answer the letters, but the best she could do and still remain truthful was to say she plays "a girl with vague ideas about virtue" in the film. It's a far cry from Margaret Williams.

Jean is a tall, almost rangy girl whose excellent figure has never been shown to best advantage on TV. She is married to Tom Seidel, former actor and agent, now a building contractor, and they live with their two young children on a beautiful secluded street in Brentwood.

A native of Chicago who prefers to call Indiana home, she is a graduate of Lake Forest College, Northwestern University, radio soap opera, summer stock and the Broadway stage. Her big Broadway success was in "The Traitor," opposite Lee Tracy. This brought her a Hollywood contract, followed by 13 pictures, followed by TV.

Having done just about everything, Jean is of the opinion that repertory theater is perhaps the nearest thing to an actress' dream. "It gives you everything," she says, resignedly, "except the money. A different role every week but the same paycheck."

Jean enjoys her TV family—Danny ▶ Thomas, Rusty Hamer, Sherry Jackson —but wants to see more of her own.

Duchess Of Windsor To Go On TV; No Fancy Duds For Frankie Laine

HOLLYWOOD . . . The elegant Duchess of Windsor will make her television debut in the fall . . . Frankie Laine almost canceled as Arthur Godfrey's summer replacement on Wednesday nights when he was told by the sponsors that he couldn't wear the casual clothes he prefers in Hollywood . . . Richard Boone, star of Medic, bought a string of seven race horses and is naming them after the different sulfa drugs . . . Preston Foster, Waterfront's "Cap'n John," flatly refused to do a second telefilm with a seal after being called on to kiss it in an earlier show.

Anita Ekberg: bait.

■ When Warners offered French character-actor Marcel Dalio a leading role in their upcoming Casablanca TV series, he was baited with: "Anita Ekberg is in the series, and you'll get two love scenes with her." "These are very unfair tactics," Marcel moaned. "How can any actor in his right mind refuse?"

■ Before NBC's initial Wide Wide World telecast, the producer of the Mexican segment was told it was all right to show a matador being killed "—but not the bull." . . . From Dean Martin: "What's all this talk around town about two comedians splitting up? Jerry Lewis and I are tighter than the skin on a dog's back." . . . Ray Bolger says he'll do no more dancing on TV if he can help it. He refused a CBS bid for a one-hour-a-week show with a simple explanation: "I want to live longer."

Lassie's trainer, Rudd Weatherwax, is seeking a stand-in for Tommy Rettig. The final judge: Lassie . . . Tommy told me the secret of Lassie's beautiful coat. It's one of make-up man Max Factor's better dye jobs.

■ Dick Powell has sold some Four Star Playhouse telefilms to Japan, where they're run in regular movie theaters . . . Ozzie and Harriet will have more complicated filming schedules next season, because David will be trying for a berth on the U.S.C. football team and brother Ricky will be playing end for Hollywood High School . . . Johnny Carson explains the format of his new show this way: "Go on the air, get off a half-hour later, and fill up the time in the middle."

■ Jimmy Durante reports he keeps a pair of scissors in his pocket "to snip off the end of my wet seegar. I tell you this sanitary, scientific and hygee-enic secret to pass on to the readers of TV GUIDE."

NEXT WEEK: EARL WILSON

HOLLYWOOD Dan Jenkins reports:

CBS is hard at work planning a six-star film series, the six stars to rotate but entire series to be based on same locale and framework. JOAN FONTAINE, JOSEPH COTTEN, CLAUDETTE COLBERT and DONNA REED may be four of the six.
